LIFT THE WEIGHT

DEAR GOD,

I am slowly rediscovering life.
I realize that there are so many beautiful things in this world in which I am still living.

I see flowers blooming,

I hear birds singing in the morning.

And mostly, I know there are people who wish me well.

LORD, open my eyes, my ears and my heart!

Dry my tears, so none will have been shed in vain!

Each one is precious to you,

and all are precious to the loved one I have lost.

Do not let me become hardened.

Lift the weight from my heart.

Whatever happens, I know you will be faithful to me,

You, my LORD and my GOD!

(Romans 14: 7-9 – None of us lives for himself only and none of us dies for himself only.)

IN YOU, LORD

FATHER,

you did not abandon your Son to the powers of death.

You brought him back to life so that each one of us,
myself, and all those who believe, may live with hope in our hearts.

With this hope that surpasses anything we can imagine

I want to pray for the loved one who has left us and is already sharing with you this life I am waiting for.

He (she) has preceded me on the road which leads to you.

For this reason, LORD, I am no longer so afraid.

I know that one day, you will gather us all in your kingdom.

Thank you, LORD!

(Revelation 21: 4 – He will wipe away every tear from their eyes. Death shall be no more.)
